To Whom It May Concern,

I have the privilege of sharing some good news about the newly formed "Elijah Now" ministry envisioned and shaped by a young Seventh-day Adventist family of four who live in the Spokane, Washington area. I have known the Richie Brower family for almost ten years and have observed them struggle to serve God unconditionally. They deeply love God and have put their future squarely in His hands and are eager to share their convictions and testimonies with others. They continue to participate in a local Adventist congregation.

I am pleased to be able to recommend their ministry "Elijah Now" as a biblically and Spirit of Prophecy-based ministry that will encourage other young families to give all their energy and future into God's hands. The most exciting time for the church lies directly ahead—and Richie and Timi could make that path clearer for those who care to discern it. I can also promise you that attendees of their presentations will not be bored or unchallenged!

In conclusion, I recommend this fine family and their ministry to you without reservation. Their influence well could be the catalyst for Holy Spirit revival in your families and your community.

Yours in the Blessed Hope,

Gerald Haeger
